Early one morning Bucky the Beaver's eyes sprang open and he sat upright in his bed. Even though the sun was shining and the birds were singing, Bucky felt nervous. The reason Bucky felt so nervous was because this was no ordinary day; it was the first day of school! But, while Bucky was nervous, he was still very excited and couldn't wait to start his day and see his friends _____ and Sammy the squirrel.

Bouncing out of bed, Bucky brushed his teeth and combed his fur then put on his First Day of School outfit. Once he was dressed he rushed down to the kitchen to enjoy his favorite breakfast of cedar bark and wild berries. After finishing his breakfast he gathered his books and helped his mom to pack his lunch, then he waved goodbye and headed towards the bus.

Mr. Moose, the bus driver, was waiting for Bucky at the bus stop and welcomed him aboard. Mr. Moose liked to laugh and sing with the kids all the way to school and Bucky liked that very much! As the bus arrived at his school, Bucky was almost sad to have to go to class, but he knew that Mr. Moose would be back to pick him up and take him home again.

As Bucky entered his classroom he saw his old friends _____ and Sammy the Squirrel and was excited to learn that they were all going to be in the same class this year! They took seats next to each other and began to remove their books from their packs. Bucky had heard that Miss Robin's class was the most fun, and with his good friends there he was certain it would be!

Once Miss Robin arrived she flew to the front of the classroom and perched upon the blackboard. From there she began to tell the class about all of the exciting things they would be learning and all of the adventures they would share as the year went on. If it was possible to be even more excited, Bucky certainly was! He had no idea that school could actually be interesting! It seemed as though only a moment had passed when suddenly the bell rang announcing that it was time for Bucky and his friends to go for lunch.

Bucky, Sammy and _____ made their way to the cafeteria to eat their lunches, and from there they ventured to the field to join in a game of kickball. Everyone was laughing and smiling as they played together on the field, and it was soon discovered that _____ was a very talented pitcher! When it was Bucky's turn to kick he aimed for the open field and kicked as hard as he could. The ball sailed into the outfield and even the older kids cheered as Bucky ran around the bases, having kicked his first ever home run!

The rest of the day flew by in a flash! So quickly in fact that, before he knew it, Bucky was putting on his pajamas, saying "goodnight" and climbing into bed! As Bucky laid his head upon his pillow he thought back on his fantastic first day and couldn't believe that he had ever been nervous about going to school.

He looked forward to the next morning when he could pack up his books, climb aboard the bus and head off to school again. With a smile on his face Bucky drifted off to sleep and his dreams were filled with memories of his perfect first day and visions of great days to come.

Now it's your turn, can you draw Bucky's dream?
